

Joke fot St Patricks Day

Created Tuesday 17 March 2026

A fellow is on vacation playing golf in Ireland when he hits his ball into the rough. While foraging for the ball he finds his errant hook has knocked a small person in the head and made him unconscious. The man gently shakes the tiny man and says "I am so sorry. Please wake up."

The little man opens his eyes and blasts "Faith and begorah...you have caught me!" The gentleman is a little stunned and replies "Caught?"

The little man looks him in the eye and states, "Yes, I am a Leprechaun and you my friend are very lucky. For catching me, I am going to bestow upon ya, three wishes. Any three things. So..what'll it be?"

The man stands for a moment and say, "Listen, I am very blessed. I don't need a thing. I live a fulfilling life, have lots of friends and wont for nothing. Give those three wishes to someone who really needs them."

The little leprechaun is stunned. His mouth agape he says "Well, I never. First time in all me life that someone has turned down these wishes. For that my friend, I am going to give you them myself without argument. First, you will play the best golf ever. You will rank with the pros. Next, I am going to give you unlimited wealth. Every time you reach into your pocket you wallet will be filled with cash. You never have to look for money. Last, I am going to give the gift of adoration from women. All you have to do is smile at a lass and she will be yours without question or guilt."

The man protests but the leprechaun won't hear a thing about it and disappears before any discussion can be completed. A year later, the same fellow is playing golf at the same club and is out on the same hole. As he walks down the fairway, the leprechaun appears.

"Well hello me old friend. How have ya been?" The leprechaun asks. The man replies. "Well, what a surprise. I have been very well thank you. How about you?" The leprechaun presses, "Just fine and dandy...but none of that now, how have you been with the golf?"

The man pauses, "Well it has been an amazing year. I played in the pro tour and won several championships. I have met many wonderful people and had an opportunity to travel everywhere."

The leprechaun asks "And the money?" The man replies, "It's been outstanding. I have done so much good. I regularly give help to the homeless, the poor and the community. I visit families falling on hard times and I am able to make a real difference. It's very enriching."

Finally, with a rye smile, the leprechaun queries "And the sex?" The man turns all red and says, "It's been fine. Maybe once or twice a month." The leprechaun is stunned and exclaims, "THAT'S IT?" The man bashfully replies, "Well, that's not so bad for a catholic priest."
